Ventilator Industry

Production line to manufacture housings of ventilator motors

The line will be manually load and then the cycle is running automatically. After the forming operation the housing will be taken by one feeder and put through the side column on a transport belt. This belt tansfers the parts to an automated washer system.

